Major networks generate press releases, and what is not on the networks is reported by other outlets. Pretty much every news program across the board is reporting on #Saudi, even the ABC. Every major market stock market is down (I see lots of fear). I can't even count the number of firms I'm asked at work about the attacks; the clients definitely want a lead and have been e-mailing me asking about the Saudi angle. The international companies want to "better understand" the impact of these cyber attacks. This basically represents an intelligence procurement opportunity, since this is all being reported on, but none of the major agencies are providing any guidance on attributing the attacks. This is the whole point of this story. How do we know these are Saudis? How do we know this is Saudi-based? We can't because even their government says the evidence is not definitive.
