Gameplay Chandrayaan VR has elements of exploration, puzzle solving and action, where players must use the controls of a humanoid robot to explore a disused space station that is fallen out of contact with the Earth. The game begins with the player as a visitor to the space station, who must make their way through the ruin of a space station. As they progress, they will encounter their first robots, who are commanded to serve the player. The player interacts with these robots by controlling their movements and their weapon system, where they will find a large amount of items that can be used to help the player progress through the game. While the player can control the robot with their keyboard, they are also able to use the movement system, which consists of a fire button that allows the robot to move up, down, left and right, as well as a fire button that allows the robot to turn left and right. Once a robot is in a location, the player can use their mouse to control the robot's weapon system, which includes the use of a grappling hook to swing from location to location, as well as an assault rifle and a plasma gun that fires charged plasma balls, and a plasma launcher. Each area of the space station is guarded by specific types of robot, and these must be defeated before the player can proceed to the next location, where they can find more robots that must be defeated. Once the player has passed all of the areas that are guarded by robots, they have to proceed to the next section of the station, until eventually the player finds the final area of the game, where they are able to engage with one final robot that guards a door. Once they defeat it, they will be given access to a room where they can use the items that they collected throughout the game, and can return to the space station where they began. Version 1.1: Added a guide and a tutorial for the players. Added an additional trigger for the fire button, allowing players to toggle between moving and being able to press the fire button. Added a warning for the players that there is a limit to the number of robots that they can destroy at once. Made the robots patrol in a cycle.
