Selective recognition of a single histidine residue in biomolecules by the imidazole-triphenylphosphine system. A new class of organophosphorus substrates for the histidine residue in biomolecules is synthesized in a single step using the triphenylphosphine/imidazole system. Substituents at the imidazole ring occupy the nicotinamide pocket, which requires a small volume to accommodate the triphenylphosphine moiety. In contrast, the benzophenone system occupies the large nicotinamide pocket. Q: Android Studio - Cannot find class 'android.support.v4.app.FragmentManagerImpl' I'm trying to open Fragments from FragmentTransaction.replace() I've added following code: FragmentTransaction ft = this.getSupportFragmentManager().beginTransaction(); ft.replace(R.id.frameLayout, new MyFragment(), MyFragment.class.getName()); ft.commitAllowingStateLoss(); but it looks like I can't use any v4's methods from support library in this case? I'm using Android Studio 1.4.1 and minSDK = 21 My build.gradle contains following: compile "com.android.support:appcompat-v7:21.0.3" compile 'com.android.support:support-v4:21.0.3' A: Looking at your screencap, I'm guessing you're using a virtual device? In that case, support fragments weren't meant for you. You need to use Android's support library fragments Android Support Library v4 has support fragments which is a convenient way to dynamically create and manage fragments instead of loading them from XML. This is perfect when you have a need to create multiple fragments for your application, such as fragments for a list view or a detail view. Support library fragments should be used for two things:
